

Neural and Psychological Mechanisms of Pain Perception

NCT02446262

Status	RECRUITING
Phase	Not Applicable
Sponsor	National Center for Complementary and Integrative Health (NCCIH)
Enrollment	500 participants

Key Eligibility Criteria

Inclusion (4)

- Healthy
- Between 18 and 50 years old
- Fluent in English
- Able to provide written informed consent.

Exclusion (18)

- Unable to comply with study procedures or follow-up visits.
- Has a major medical condition or medical history that in a clinician's assessment could affect heat sensitivity, pain thresholds, or ability to comply with study procedures. This may include cardiovascular, autonomic, or neurological conditions, including stroke, blindness, deafness, a history of brain damage, or a chronic systemic disease (e.g., diabetes).
- Has a current mood disorder, anxiety disorder, or substance use disorder, or has a history of psychosis, hospitalization for a mental health condition, or recurrent psychiatric episodes.
- Has a medical condition that in a clinician's assessment might affect somatosensation (e.g., Raynaud s disease, peripheral neuropathy, or circulatory disorder).
- Has a current chronic pain condition or has had chronic pain in the past (painful condition lasting more than six months).

... and 13 more (see full listing online)

Locations (1 total)

National Institutes of Health Clinical Center, Bethesda, Maryland, United States