

The Combined Utility of Angio-CT and MRI in Managing Chronic Musculoskeletal Pain: a Prospective Study to Evaluate the Efficacy of Transarterial Microembolization

NCT06509087

Status RECRUITING
Sponsor Tri-Service General Hospital
Enrollment 60 participants

Key Eligibility Criteria

Inclusion (1)

- Patients with chronic musculoskeletal shoulder or knee joint pain in our hospital, including degenerative knee arthritis, adhesive capsulitis of the shoulder, and those confirmed by physical examination or ultrasound-guided injection to have tendinopathy or ligamentopathy, who have failed drug therapy, rehabilitation, or injection treatments, with a duration of symptoms greater than three months, are the target population of this study.

Locations (1 total)

Tri-Service General Hospital, Taipei, Taiwan