

Safety and Efficacy of Ear Acupuncture for Antituberculosis Drug-Related Nausea and Vomiting

NCT07271225

Status	RECRUITING
Phase	Not Applicable
Sponsor	Indonesia University
Enrollment	58 participants

Key Eligibility Criteria

Inclusion (4)

- Participants are individuals diagnosed with drug-sensitive tuberculosis or drug-resistant tuberculosis receiving short-term treatment regimens (BPaL/BPaLM)
- Participants are aged 17 years or older.
- Participants experience nausea and vomiting after taking antituberculosis drugs.
- Participants are willing to comply with the study schedule until completion and provide written informed consent.

Exclusion (8)

- Presence of skin lesions at the site where press needles (PN) will be applied
- Participants who experience nausea and vomiting prior to antituberculosis treatment (including comorbidities that may cause nausea and vomiting, such as renal failure and liver disorders)
- Participants with drug-resistant tuberculosis (DR-TB) receiving long-term or individualized treatment regimens
- Participants with diabetes mellitus and a random blood glucose level > 200 mg/dL
- Participants with unstable hemodynamic status
- ... and 3 more (see full listing online)

Locations (1 total)

RSUP Persahabatan, Jakarta, Jakarta Timur, Indonesia